

Forest insect museum

more than 10,000 species and 100,000 pinned specimens in the museum, it is the largest insect collection in Sabah. This insect museum, together with the herbarium, are two of the most important collection centres for Sabah's rich biodiversity.

If you come across an interesting tree or a beautiful butterfly that you would like to identify, the staff at the FRC herbarium or insect museum in Sepilok would be able to help. There is also a wood collection for identification of wood samples.

An ethnobotanical garden which grows many of the common traditional medicinal plants is another attraction of FRC. Ever wonder how a Tongkat Ali or a Kacip Fatimah plant looks like? Then head for FRC, which grows both and has many more interesting medicinal plants on show.

Research work at FRC is divided into various programmes encompassing natural forests, plantation forests, wood products, and technical services such as chemistry and biotechnology.

A regular biannual peer-reviewed journal on tropical forestry and related subjects called SEPILOK BULLETIN is published by FRC. The journal had been launched recently by the Member of Parliament for Sandakan, Datuk V.K. Liew. Copies of the journal are available from the FRC library.
