VALENTINE'S Day is just a day away from today. Or two if you counted this morning. Anyway, those who celebrate Valentine's Day will definitely be very excited. For men, they will be interested to see the reactions of their partners when they receive their Valentine's day gift and their partners, mostly girls, of course, will be excited to see what they will receive for Valentine.

If you are not very good at buying gifts and is still trying to figure out what to buy, well, the best bet for you is to buy fragrances and make up. Besides candies, these are the best bet.

Fragrance and cosmetic shops are a dime a dozen in this part of the world. So let me point you towards one of the best place to go. The Body Shop. It has something for every part of your body and I mean every part...so visit and go with what they have to offer.

One of their latest products is the New Moroccan Rose Fragrance Range. The fragrance is distinctly feminine and elegant. According to the information given out by the shop, the range aspires to create a fresh rose fragrance that can be a good gift during Valentine's Day.

There are five products in this range they include the Moroccan Rose Eau De Toilette which boast a fresh rose fragrance that epitomise the romance of spring. The fragrance is usually sprayed on pulse points and neck area to maximise the effect.

The other product is the milky body lotion called Moroccan Rose Body Milk. This lotion nourishes the skin and with its subtle rose fragrance, this will be a hit with those who wants to have satiny skin and smells like it too.

For those who need moisturisers with scents, the Moroccan Rose Body Butter is just right. This lotion gets absorbed into the skin easily and is not greasy to the touch.

A shower is always heavenly if you have the proper gel to go with it and I believe the Moroccan Rose Shower Gel, a soap-free cleansing gel, will do just fine. The scent that emanates from the lather is good enough, but when it leaves your skin feeling fresh and clean, it is a definite plus and becomes a must-get-item. And last but not least get the Moroccan Rose Bath and Massage Oil, fragrant oil, that is ideal for the bath or for a relaxing, sensual massage.

This will definitely leave you feeling clean and fresh and smelling like a Rose. I believe this collection of Moroccan Rose Fragrance will make you a hit instantly with your loved ones.

However, if you feel like getting a complete make-up set for your partner, The Body Shop has that too. It is their New Limited Edition Spring Make-up Roseflower Collection 2009.

The Roseflower Blush 01 Shade which is actually Pink will make a pale cheek look rosy and fesh while the Fuschia shade or Roseflower Blush 02 is perfect for those who want to have that sexy passionate look.

As for the eye shadow the Roseflower Eyes 01 Shade, which is Sunshine Gold, will definitely be a hit for those who wants to tantalise their partner across a candle lit table.

For those who like green eye shadows the Roseflower Eyes 02 Shade: Mint Green

Will be a definite hit. The Body Shop have an array of lipsticks, but the soft pink Roseflower Lips 01 Shade will do fine for Valentine's as it is natural and will not give you that 'bold brassy' look.

The Roseflower Lips 02 true pink shade is glamorous and good for those with full lips while deep pink Roseflower Lips 03 Shade is sexy and glamorous.

Last but not least use the Roseflower Radiance Stick 01 radiant Shade along the cheekbones to make your face shimmer. You will look glow-y and fresh and sexy with this shade on your cheekbones.

Okay, this is if you are wearing the make up of course but this range of product is a winner as a gift during Valentine's Day too.

Actually The Body Shop is also promoting the Japanese Cherry Blossom, a romantic, floral fragrance that captures the beauty, tradition and serenity of the treasured Japanese cherry blossoms

According to a statement by the shop, this passionate scent has a top note of Fuji apple, Chinese magnolia, and osmanthus flower, blending with middle notes of star jasmine, Japanese cherry blossoms, and Japanese persimmon and base notes of sandalwood, hinoki wood and fruity musk combining to create the perfect floral fusion to delight the senses.

"The range is made out of four luxurious and sensorial products, containing cherry blossom extracts, with light and sensual textures. This collection is perfect for loves ones or simply for yourself."

"The products also include a rich assortment of natural, Community Trade ingredients such as organic honey from Zambia and Organic Olive Oil from Italy which means that not only you get the very best benefits for your skin, a community will benefit in the process."

Okay. There are however many and various products in The Body Shop that are just as delightful. They have many and various types of scents for both men and women so if you are shopping for a man-friend, don't despair. The shop have it all. Just walk into their outlets; most of the larger shopping complexes have one and ask for the latest scents from the staff there.

So happy Valentine's Day and have a fragrance-y time at The Body Shop.

Saying it with fragrance ...on Valentine's Day
