May offering

In conjunction with the Sabah Fest and Harvest Festival celebration Sri Andaman, sited on the third floor of KK Plaza is offering various packages for guests who wish to borrow traditional clothes and acquire make-up services. Proprietor Bakhri Arfah says those who wish to borrow traditional costumes are invited to visit his boutique to carry out a fitting. "This is to enable us to tuck or let out what is necessary," he says adding that other services for the two festivals included make up and hair styling services. Meanwhile, the wedding packages offered by Sri Andaman are still available, with additional new attires. "We have restocked and now have several new traditional and contemporary wedding attires for our customers. This is to ensure that we keep up with the fashion trend and meet our customers' demands," he enthuses. "We are also promoting our traditional attires, especially the various tribal costumes as well as the evergreen baju kurung and kebaya fashion. We want to show our patriotism through our designs, by sticking to tradition but adding on sequins and embroidery. That way, we are not too far away from our traditional motifs and still add on glamour and elegance in our attires," Bakhri who is also a fashion designer shares. Besides the wedding packages the boutique also includes services such as make-ups, photography and video for special occasions. On another note, Sri Andaman model Rounnah Beb will be displaying Sri Andaman fashion on the fashion shows that will be carried out by the boutique throughout the year.
